GOLD LIST EDITION

weaver and fiber artist Tanya Aguiñiga—"She's taken eight different fibers, all black, and woven and braided them into a crazy, good mess," he says—and a pair of geometric mirrors by Jonathan Nesci, whom Furth describes as one part mathematician and one part artist. "They have solid-bronze frames, and the mirror isn't glass—it's polished steel," he marvels. David Wiseman, the Haas Brothers and Benjamin Kicic are represented, as well, as are Wendell Castle and Michael Anastassiades. "Everything in the room is an original form—there's nothing derivative," Furth says proudly. And pulling it all together was no small feat. "My role was a little like being a conductor," the designer says. "Hopefully, at the end of the day, we created beautiful music."
